Message from The Rector

Dear Readers,

I am very happy that PSC Annual Report 2016 has come up to your hand in such a different appearance with a reduced size which gives it a much better and smarter look than ever.

As the Rector of Police Staff College Bangladesh, I am glad to see the significant progresses of PSC over the year 2016. Its successes in launching academic journey and establishing international scholarly network demonstrate its continuous effort in being adaptive, perseverant and dynamic towards its vision and mission which are valued and significant not only to the policing of Bangladesh but also to the people who are interested in public safety and security of Bangladesh.

PSC contributes to create an environment where knowledge and evidence through learning is generated, nurtured, advanced, discussed and shared among diverse customers, stakeholders and practitioners. Our training courses and post graduate degree program welcome learners from diverse communities - from the most new to the most experienced. Our researches produce insights that are communicated to policy and practices. We offer not only educational products but also classic learning facilities at our campus.

I hope you will find this report both interesting and informative. Let's join our journey and see the world in unified lenses. Together, we can better serve the community and make a difference. We become different by making the things different!

I must acknowledge the high-level interest and time-to time valuable guidance from the Board of Governors of PSC, very sincere and constant support from the Police Headquarters and earnest cooperation and assistances from our national/ international partners that they've given us throughout 2016.

Finally I would like to thank the PSC staff from top to bottom for their relentless effort to achieve great successes over 2016 and to bring a sustainable future for this Centre of Excellence.

We look forward to having much more in 2017!

M. Sadiqur Rahman

Rector

Message from the Vice-Rector

We are delighted for the publication of the PSC Annual Report 2016. I and our faculties are very proud of PSC achievements highlighted in this report. Our staff members are incredibly empathetic, compassionate, and hard-working on their works which led PSC achieving such brilliant successes. Thank you for making 2016 yet another remarkable year for our conscious communities and veteran stakeholders!

During 2016, PSC became focused for its two most noteworthy advancements. PSC's introduction of its first ever academic degree on 'Master of Applied Criminology and Police Management' is an exemplary achievement over the years since its inception. It offers post graduate degree to the police and non police students with an aim to attain a pro-police setting within the community that will help to institutionalize, smoothen and ease the practice of proactive policing in Bangladesh. Our success in achieving the Australia Awards Fellowship Round 16 with Macquarie University, Australia is another milestone achievement of PSC. It will let PSC advance forward towards its internationalization and confident in broadening its scholarly engagement with global academia. Besides, PSC's regular activities such as organizing core courses, advance courses, partnership courses and accomplishing research works duly over 2016 are also much appreciated.

Over the course of 2016, we made a major structural change of PSC. PSC's Research, Planning and Evaluation Wing has been changed to the Wing of Academic and Research due to introducing its first ever professional Master Degree Program. I am happy that PSC is rapidly moving to its academic endeavours and very prudently overcoming its on-going challenge that is the precondition to make PSC a world class academic and research hub.

I am thankful to our esteemed board members, PHQ senior leaders, our development partners, stakeholders and our all well-wishers to make PSC active, engaged, vibrant, and growing throughout 2016. We hope to have your continuous support in the years ahead!

My sincere thanks also go to the whole team of PSC for their dedication and contribution to lead PSC achieving such successes in 2016.

Last but not the least, I am thankful to the team of Research and Academic Wing for their brilliant and outstanding job in bringing this Annual Report in such a lucid, attractive and convincing manner.

Executive Summary

This copy of Annual Report details the PSC's dynamic performances over the course of 2016. It reflects that our efforts are aligning to our vision and mission which denotes as very impressive, adaptive, innovative and productive. It illustrates how we are advancing to our commitments and goals.

During 2016, we have made some notable successes which better articulates the role of PSC and its dedication and commitment towards its vision and mission to keep our community safe and secured. This annual report is portrayed as aligning to our strategic goals. It details our efforts to influence police leaders, to shed light on academic endeavour, to create significant collaboration and network, to provide insights and values to policies and practices and strengthen PSC in terms of both academic and infrastructural development. Among those successes, the most striking are the first ever introduction of professional Master degree program entitled 'Master of Applied Criminology and Police Management' under the National University Bangladesh and securing the fund from Australian Government for 15 Bangladesh Police officials which led them to attain a training program on counter terrorism / countering violent extremism at Macquarie University, Sydney. This course was the extended collaboration program between PSC and Macquarie University with which a proposal for MoU is under consideration.

Last year, PSC shows a considerable growth of its core courses and core course participants from 2015. It was actually because, over 2016 the country remained relatively stable and peaceful except few exceptions compared to that of 2015 which was very unrest and unstable specially in the early of 2015. However during 2016, the growth of partnership courses was decreased from the previous year as the sudden escalation of violent extremism during 2016 in Bangladesh which discouraged foreign partners to work in Bangladesh due to the security alerts imposed by their authorities.

In such current uprising of violent extremism, PSC hosted some specialized courses and workshops for the mid to senior level police officials during 2016 to address this contemporary threat on terrorism and radicalization where PSC invited Australian expert to speak on those issues.

Last year PSC brought a major structural change. Its Research, Planning and Evaluation Wing (RP & E) was renamed as the Academic and Research Wing that clearly articulated its academic and research activities in a dedicated and functional manner. It helps PSC to perform its higher degree and research programs in an effective way.

Planning to develop mid-career training programs for the three tiers of police professionals ranging from ASP to SP is a significant and praiseworthy step of PSC during 2016. These training programs will be designed in collaborative partnerships with foreign reputed institutions and universities in order to make these designated officers efficient and productive to their next levels. Policy will be taken to make these training courses compulsory so that these courses can be meaningful, effective and actionable. These blended programs will be instrumental to make our officers confident, pragmatic, productive and up-to-date in facing the challenges of contemporary policing through networking and sharing of best practices and intelligence.

In 2016, PSC's move for drafting a new Development Project Proposal (DPP) for 50 years vision was its another notable initiative which envisaged to making the college a world-class educational institute. But the challenge is, DPP appears with a huge budget program as it encompasses all aspects of development including educational and infrastructural sectors. To make the DPP full functional and implementable, PSC needs a strong drive of its own and the wholehearted support from PHQ, which we do believe that we are capable and confident to reach it.

Policing and the law enforcement services are continuously evolving, especially with the advancement of new technologies and globalization which makes the security domain more uncertain but more advantageous than ever before. Under this paradox, PSC as an educational sector is likely to face new challenges to balance between these complexities and opportunities. But, it is undeniable that we need to be smart with all capacities to provide new values and support from these emerging opportunities and always prepared to effectively deal these issues.

I would like to show my profound gratitude for the experience and encouragement I've got from the Rector and Vice Rector of PSC throughout the year. Your prudent leadership makes it easy for me to manage our team. Thanks also for your unconditional support and valuable advice in preparing this Annual Report.

I appreciate and thank the whole PSC staff, in particular, my team of Academic and Research Wing for their diligence, hard work, sincerity and assiduous effort to make PSC an ever growing educational industry and in doing so, help to build safe and secured communities.

I wish you all the best!

Who We Are

Police Staff College Bangladesh (PSC) is the apex training and research institute of Bangladesh Police. It is responsible for imparting quality training to Bangladesh Police, offering professional academic degree and conducting cutting edge researches on criminological issues for the improvement and operational performance of police and the community to make our place safe and secured.

PSC has come to light as a statutory organization in 2002 under the Police Staff College Act, 2002, through an auspicious inaugural by the Honourable Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina on November 30, 2000. It is the first of its kind in the South Asia region. It has a beautiful landscape of approximately 19.5 acres of land located at Mirpur-14 - the heart of Dhaka, the capital city of Bangladesh.

PSC is governed by the Board of Governors composed of a high level 13-members body headed by the Honourable Minister, Ministry of Home Affairs. The dignitary members include Secretaries of Ministry of Home Affairs; Ministry of Public Administration; Ministry of Finance; Ministry of Education and Ministry Law, Justice and Parliamentary Affairs, the Inspector General; Rector, Bangladesh Public Administration Training Centers (PATC); Commandant, Defence Services Command and Staff College (DSCSC); Vice Chancellor, Jahangirnagar University; Additional Secretary, Cabinet Division and the Rector, PSC who is the member secretary of the board.

The Rector, Additional Inspector General of Bangladesh Police, is the head of the executive of PSC. The Vice Rector in the rank of Deputy Inspector General assists the Rector in regards to academic, research and training matters and all administrative concerns. PSC has two functional wings: Training Wing and Academic & Research Wing headed by two Member Directing Staff (MDS) - MDS (Training) and MDS (Academic & Research) respectively in the rank of Additional Deputy Inspector General of Bangladesh Police. Both MDSs are guided by the Rector for their areas of responsibilities. Besides, PSC has Administration and Finance Branch for the support services to the other wings. A Director in the rank of Superintendent of Police provides all administrative supports to smooth functioning of PSC according to the directives of the Rector and Vice Rector.

Last year, PSC has rearranged its organizational structure. In September 2016, PSC's Academic and Research Wing appears as the structural change of its Research, Planning and Evaluation Wing, the later started its journey in 2012. PSC is reorganized in its new form following the introduction of its first ever professional Master degree program on 'Applied Criminology and Police Management' as a persuasion of its academic endeavour. This land mark success was only possible under the prudent leadership of the honourable IGP, the Rector and a bunch of its committed staff.

PSC's Academic and Research Wing are engaged in pursuing academic endeavours and conducting cutting edge research across a range of eco-social, criminological, security, policing and counter-terrorism issues. Further, PSC's Training Wing offers high quality professional training to enhance sound managerial capability, operational commanding skill and sharp farsightedness with a commitment to develop sound professionalism of the police personnel.

PSC's core training program is primarily internal (on campus), but it has a strategic vision to offer distance education programs as well. The duration of the core programs differs but is generally ranging from 2-3 weeks. PSC conducts courses in collaboration with national and international partners too. PSC is now advancing its infrastructure facilities such as new eco-friendly academic hub and vertical extension of dormitory building.

PSC's journey since its inception has gradually been very worthy and promising. PSC is now more confident to achieve its strategic vision within the target period. Our present outstanding performances align with our assertion. We have broadened our network in the international arena, most prominently with Macquarie University, Australia. We are making regular arrangement of SAARC international training course and a number of international conferences/seminars in collaborative partnerships with the international and foreign partners including Sydney's Macquarie University, Interpol, Singapore's International Centre for Political Violence and Terrorism Research, US Embassy, Australian/Canadian High Commission, Netherlands Embassy, International Association of Women Police (IAWP), German International Cooperation (GIZ) and so on. In this way, PSC is moving forward and endeavouring for excellence with a vision to establish it as the regional and global 'think tank'.

Like the previous years, this year PSC provides one regional course for the 4th consecutive time on 'Translational Crime: SAARC Perspective' for the SP of SAARC region. Besides, PSC conducted one specialized course on Research Methodology for the Police and young social researchers.

During 2016, PSC was successful to conduct its all types of core courses in equal proportion for various levels of police leaders

Encouraging Enrolment and Meeting the Expectation of Participants

It was evident that the core courses of PSC were increased in 2016 than that of 2015. In 2016 it was 339 while in 2015 it was 231. While in 2016, Bangladesh faced a significant security threat from the violent extremism that has created a fear of insecurity to the foreigners to come to this country. Hence the total amount of participants in 2016 was 885 which was less than that of the previous year as accounted to 1111. However the increase of the core courses despite of this hazard and security risk was highly commendable.

Increase of Core Course Participants

Strategy: Make the Training Programs Career Focused and Compulsory

PSC makes a plan to introduce midcareer training programs for the police leaders ranging from ASP to SP at each level in a phase basis to prepare them to be competent for the next level and acquire necessary skills, knowledge and attitude to render their professional duties with diligence and prudence. These training programs will be conducted in collaboration with international academia/organizations. Once introduced, these training programs become compulsory for those police personnel who hold these corresponding positions.

Strategy: Make the Training Programs Inclusive, Extensive and Participatory

Gender Inclusiveness in PSC Courses

PSC courses are inclusive to and focus on gender although the current scenario does not show an impressive figure due to the male female ratio in police is still heavily disproportionate, hence women are under-represented in policing. In these PSC courses, gender diversity is poorly articulated. Total 307 male and 33 female had participated in different PSC courses.

Females were less attendees at PSC

Accommodating Wide-Ranging Participants

PSC accommodated extensive participants ranging from new to the most experienced ones during last year. These courses provided training to total 340 participants including 316 Bangladesh Police officials in varying ranks. The highest numbers of trainees came from ASP rank which was followed by the rank of SP. Among the total graduates, 146 were ASP, 61 Addl SP, 77 SP and 19 were Addl DIG/DIG. From the SAARC course, a total 17 participants (11 from Bangladesh Police) and from the specialized course a total 26 participants (8 from Bangladesh Police) had been graduated in 2016.

PSC is mostly attended by Asstt Superintendents and Superintendents

Incorporating Participants from Diverse Professional Backgrounds

PSC participants came from varying police units. During the year, PSC trainings were heavily dominated by the participants from district police which was followed by Metropolitan Police and Police Headquarters gradually. The minimum came from RRF and RAB.

PSC attracted participants mostly from District Police followed by Metropolitan Police

Embracing Speakers from Diverse Sectors

PSC is delighted to have country's eminent personalities as its speakers such as profound police leaders, renowned academicians, scholars, bureaucrats, lawyer, justice, defense personnel etc. In 2016, total speakers' list was 435 of them speakers from police were heavily dominated which was followed by the members from civil society.

Our Speakers are mostly from Police Professionals

Strategy: Develop Curricula Maintaining a High Level Methodical rigor

Curriculum Development Grounded Under Various Methods of Training Evaluation such as Training Impact Analysis and Training Need Assessment

PSC Courses are generally formulated through a long passage of curriculum development. It comes through a process of requirements from research output, organizational requirements, job task analysis, government and organizational training policy and Police policy group. It gives priority on Training Need Assessment (TNA) and Impact Analysis of training. Findings from these processes are used to design the courses of PSC. Discussion groups, problem-solving exercises, case studies, field visits, panel discussions are arranged to provide necessary and advanced knowledge, skills and positive attitude to the participants. To put emphasis on these requirements, PSC invites resource persons and makes expert panel from different public universities, research organization, policy analyst and retired experienced police officers. Course curricula are developed by PSC faculty in association with resource persons.

Goal 2: Integrated Programs through Augmenting National and International Partnerships and Networks

PSC is increasingly engaged with national and international like-minded partners in regards to improving its education and research. Over the years these engagements have included Australia's renowned academia - Macquarie University, University of Western Sydney, various foreign diplomatic missions located in Dhaka such as US Embassy, Australian High Commission, Canadian High Commission, UNICEF etc. Their involvement in PSC is one of the great drivers of PSC's excellence. As the current criminal environment is increasingly becoming uncertain, complex and interconnected, we are facing many challenges to approach it precisely and appropriately. It is essential to improve our capability through multitude of perspectives. Collaborative partnership in the field of education and research provides a multi-agency learning environment and enhances the opportunities for the development of professional skills, knowledge and capabilities.

Strategy: Promote Mutual Partnership and Networking

In the present landscape of global communication and interaction, exchange of experience and expertise is a desired common phenomenon. Hence, mutual cooperation and sharing of professional knowledge are essentials for an institution to reach to an optimal standard of service. Keeping these in mind, PSC is attempting to explore new opportunities for potential collaboration with the academia around the world. PSC made a land mark success through opening the avenues of potential collaboration with Australia's one of the leading educational institutions - Macquarie University over the year.

Building International Network

Due to the globalization of crime, rapid escalation of new threat like terrorism while a considerable incompetence and ignorance over such study difficulties necessitated PSC to broaden our education framework in global arena. This initiative created new learning opportunities and new capabilities from the international partners.

During 2016, PSC conducted more core courses (total 18 courses) comparing to 2015 which accounted the amount of courses 11. However, partnership courses were less than that in 2015 which was estimated 23 in 2016 while it was 29 in 2015. Similarly in 2016 the amount of PSC core participants was accounted 339 which was increased from 232 from previous year (2015) while the partnership course participants were decreased to 546 during 2016 from 879 of 2015.

Goal 3: Offer Graduate Learning Programs to Our Communities to Enhance Academic Literacy & Wisdom

Strategy: Establishing Innovative and Work-Based Graduate Learning Programs

Introducing Master of Applied Criminology and Police Management

The PSC is dedicated to offer advance study on contemporary policing, criminology and criminal justice. It aims at equipping police and other relevant professionals with critical insights on contemporary security and criminology so that they can effectively and efficiently discharge their duties. At the same time it also offers study opportunities to the interested and potential candidates from non-police and non government organizations to help them developing their careers more meaningfully in the security services.

The introduction of the graduate learning program on Master of Applied Criminology and Police Management has shed light on PSC's academic endeavour. The program was launched in July 2016 with a strong work-based functional curriculum designed to provide a sound police education. The curriculum and course credits of Master's program reflect broader education objectives in applied criminology, police leadership, management and contemporary issues in policing in order to achieve a safer community. Today, Police Staff College is one of the nation's premier criminal justice institutions. The college envisioned to bring together a very capable faculty and graduate students in diverse criminology disciplines to efficiently engage with issues on crime and justice.

Overview of the Degree Program

Master of Applied Criminology and Police Management is designed to provide education to mid-level/senior police officers (and professionals of police-related occupations) on crime and justice with a strong emphasis on evidence-based policy and practice. The program also emphasizes the development of leadership, management and policy skills, which will help to successfully run their organizations.

This course focuses on managerial and administration issues that are being faced by the police and police organizations; methods to assess the issues in terms of their nature/cause and probable effect on the organization; and the impact of these issues on effective police service delivery. Upon completion of the degree program, graduates will be better prepared to assume leadership roles and act as change agents in the police department by conducting improved policy analysis, assessing police effectiveness through a rigorous research approach, and identify current trends in the areas of policing, criminal justice and criminology.

Program Structure

Students are required to complete and pass a total of 40 credit points to be conferred the degree of the Master of Applied Criminology and Police Management. Each course of study is equivalent to 3 credit points except Independent Research which carries total 4 credit units. The length of each semester is 20-22 weeks. Coursework in the program is assessed in a range of ways that include assignments, class presentations, class test, mid-term, final exams and thesis. The study mode is campus based. Strategy: Access to Online Resources and Ensure Academic Honesty and Ethics

PSC initiated efforts to on-line access of academic resources. Last year, we started fruitful discussion with University Grant Commission (UGC) in this issue and we are hopeful that next year we can be able to get the availability of online resources through UGC. Further PSC has a plan to install the plagiarism detection software and adopt the international plagiarism police to ensure academic honesty and ethics.

Goal 4: Provide Values and Insights of Security, Criminology, and Policing Research to the National and International Platforms

Strategy: Communicate Evidence-Based Research to Policy and Practice

To meet its strategic goals, PSC is committed to undertake and support quality research to deliver best to the community. In this persuasion PSC's Academic & Research Wing is a dedicated research and knowledge center on crime and justice in Bangladesh Police. Its research priorities are aligned with Bangladesh Police Research Agenda. The main motto of PSC's research is to promote justice and reduce crime through communicating evidence-based research to policy and practice. The research works here are regulated under Police Staff College Act 2002. The research outcomes are sent to the Police Headquarters for further action.

During the year, PSC was regular in its research and publications. Four research projects were accomplished in 2016-17 and four were undergoing. The research outcomes were valuable and insightful. Apart from this, PSC published its Newsletters and Annual Report as a regular fashion. Through academic persuasion, research and journal publication, PSC continues to build the bridges between contemporary policing and academia.

The following research projects were accomplished during the year:

1. Disaster and Crime in the Coastal Area of Bangladesh: A Study on Police Activities

Abstract: The study focuses on how the police force of the disaster prone areas controls the local people behavior and what type of actions is taken by the police force in controlling the anti-human behavior that violates the local order as well as breaking the community harmony. This study is perception based opinion survey (POS) in nature and follows mixed method approach such as quantitative and qualitative. Quantitative method is used to investigate the functions of police in the disasters situation in the coastal areas of Bangladesh taking interview by the inhabitants of selected coastal areas. Qualitative method is used to know the inherent facts from the stakeholders. The study found that the coastal people were occasional criminals and they committed crimes when the needs emerged during disaster period that can be minimized through community policing grounded under crime-victim situation.

2. Drug and its impact on students: A study on rural and urban perspectives

Abstract: We have lack of information in the drug situation in Bangladesh. It is very important to know the magnitude of the drug abuse problem of the country for proper planning and resource allocation. This research illustrates the current situation of the drug addiction problems among the students of Bangladesh. A particular age group is necessary to explain the drug - crime situation in Bangladesh because the most vulnerable groups here are youths and teenage. The present study used qualitative approach with subjective assessment of attitudes, opinions and behavior. The research found that the drug abuse of students in Bangladesh is worse than anticipated.

3. Government and Private Accommodation for Police Officers: An Assessment of Security Risk at Family Life.

Abstract: This study mainly deals with police officers' security risk at family life at the government and private accommodation. Those officers who live with their family, they have to stay in a rent house or government sanctioned quarters or others. In private accommodation, there is a question of safety and security on themselves and their family members. The study shows the present accommodation condition of police officers and security risk surrounding their residence, identifies the causes of risk and investigates how they minimize their problems and cope up with that situation. It used survey research methodology. It reveals that the lack of proper accommodation of the police personnel can arise security risk to their personal and family life which in turn will hamper their professional duties and career development.

4. Public Nuisance & Hijras (Third Gender) Activities: A Study in Dhaka City

Abstract: The research looks at Hijra activities that create public nuisance in Dhaka City. It explores the most occurred nuisances in Dhaka City by Hijra communities and their potential causes, analyzes the consequences of these nuisances and finally recommends some measures to reduce these problems. The findings give necessary insights to mainstreaming the Hijras into the community. The research applied quantitative method for data collection.

Goal 5: Create a Vibrant and Quality Learning Environment

Strategy: Capacity Building of Staff

PSC is continuously engaging with its institutional capacity and capability. In doing so, PSC Staff undertake various development opportunities to build individual skills and expand PSC capabilities ranging from computer literacy for technical development to various executive levels of training/higher studies at national or international level.

Over 2016 PSC's staff had gone through a number of such capacity building programs at home and abroad. One internal program was dedicated to its non-gazetted staff employees. This course was conducted for 2 months having 2 hrs in each 3 working days a week. Total 20 participants in the rank of Constables and Sub-Inspector were graduated from this course. Further, during this year seven faculties went abroad in various types of training.

Road Map:

Development Project Proposal (DPP)

PSC has a strategic plan to strengthen it in all capacities. The 50 years Development Project Proposal (DPP) includes the following major academic and infrastructural development:

- Insufficient Internal Academic Resources
- Lack of Manpower
- Lack of experienced and expert resource on research
- Limited infrastructural facilities
- Insufficient accommodation & Logistics for the Staff
- Insufficient Vehicle Support in All Aspect
- Library Constraints

Challenges

PSC is now facing the following significant challenges that need to be considered for its future course of action.

- Insufficient internal facilitators: PSC is very much dependent on outside speakers. Because of the frequent transfer of the faculty, PSC cannot develop its internal resource persons. It should have an internal panel of facilitators specialized on particular subject so that it can run its training sessions independently.
- Lack of manpower: Apart from facilitators, PSC's endeavor has also been hampered by a lack of other supporting staff. PSC is still suffering from a shortage of skilled manpower. Most of the under commands are working under deputation from various police units.
- Lack of experienced person to conduct quality research: PSC needs more experienced as well as interested person to conduct quality research.
- Limited infrastructural facilities: It has limited scope of infrastructure facilities. Now the present facilities only can accommodate several certificate programs. Some long term courses need more facilities like seminar room, syndicate room etc.
- Insufficient accommodation & logistics for the staff: PSC cannot provide sufficient accommodation for its staff. Not only that, it also has some significant shortage of logistic supports specially vehicle support. In that

- Capacity Building Initiatives
- Acquisition of Learning Prone Staff
- Foster Mutual Collaboration
- Encourage Research-Centered Study
- Ensure Quality Research and Maintain Academic Honesty & Ethics
- On-line Resource Access
- Implement E-Learning System
- Strengthen Human Resources and Logistics
- Construct Accommodation for Staff
- Execute PSC Rules
- Ensure Green Commitment

case the staff faces severe transport problem that eventually impact the management of training and research.

- Insufficient vehicle support for the participants and the guest speakers: Correspondingly PSC is lacking vehicle support for the participants and the guest speakers even for research which needs field study. It needs to be dependent on DMP or PHQ for vehicle support especially during its mega event like international conference or SAARC training.
- Constraints of library: PSC's library needs to be more advanced in terms of both spaces and richness. It still does not have on line access to online books, journals and reports.

Way Forward

Further points that need to be addressed are:

1. Focus on capacity building: PSC should focus more on capacity building initiatives for the directing staff. In that case more training is needed for the PSC faculties.
2. Selection of officers committed to training and learning: It needs closer contact with PHQ so that officers who are dedicated and have thirst to knowledge are posted to PSC.
3. Engagement with national and international universities: PSC can make partnership with local and foreign universities who teach criminology and policing related issues. Based on such partnership PSC can make an exchange program for its faculties and this would also help its research activities.

4. Focus on research based study: Bangladesh Police needs more research based policy implication that PSC can offer. Considering such significance, PSC faculties should be encouraged for having more research higher degrees either from local or from foreign universities. Devotion for PhD research would be highly appreciated in this regards. In that case, PSC can arrange some financial support for those personnel.
5. Giving importance on academic honesty for quality research: PSC has to buy plagiarism detection software to ensure academic honesty.
6. Taking initiatives for getting access to online resources: PSC should take necessary steps for getting online access to academic resources.
7. Implementation of E-learning process: In line with the Government of Bangladesh's vision -2020, PSC should take necessary step for the immediate adoption of e-learning system.
8. Strengthening of Manpower: Institutional persuasion is needed to increase permanent staff so that PSC would not have to depend on deputation.
9. Strengthening of logistic support: For smooth functioning of education, training and research activities, PSC's logistic support should be upgraded, in particular vehicle. Hence, a close official communication with PHQ is needed to increase those facilities.
10. Accommodation for PSC staff: Since there are insufficient residential facilities for officials of PSC, initiatives are needed to prepare a plan for building up a multi storied dormitory for senior officers to mitigate this problem.
11. Efforts to move pending rules of PSC: Active and continuous drive is urgent to make sure that those rules come into existence.
12. Ensuring green commitment: In order to keep its premise as environmental friendly, PSC should follow some green commitments, such as installation of automatic timing for lights and air conditioning controllers to reduce energy consumption, embracing e-learning software and reducing paper use, recycling of paper, printer, toner cartridge and waste.
